

PART D – Speaking Assessment (1 Minute Answers)

1. What stresses you out, and how do you handle that stress?

Sometimes tight deadlines or multiple tasks at the same time can create stress for me. To handle this, I try to organize my work by prioritizing the most important tasks first. I also stay calm, take short breaks if needed, and focus on solving one problem at a time. This approach helps me manage pressure effectively and complete my work efficiently.

2. Describe a problem you faced in your studies or career and how you solved it.

During my studies I once faced difficulty understanding a complex subject. Instead of ignoring the problem, I started practicing more problems and asked my teachers and friends for help. I also used online resources to improve my understanding. With consistent effort I was able to overcome the difficulty and perform well in the subject.

3. How did you manage an angry family member or friend?

When someone close to me is angry, I first listen carefully to understand their concern. I try not to interrupt them and allow them to express their feelings. After that, I calmly explain my point of view and try to find a solution that satisfies both sides. Clear communication usually helps resolve the situation peacefully.

4. Technology does more harm than good. Choose a side and debate.

I believe technology does more good than harm when it is used responsibly. It helps people communicate faster, access information easily, and improves productivity in many industries. For example, technology has transformed education, healthcare, and business operations. However, it should be used wisely to avoid problems such as overdependence or misuse.

5. How would you handle tension with a difficult co-worker in the workplace?

If I experience tension with a coworker, I would first try to communicate with them calmly and respectfully. I would listen to their concerns and explain my perspective clearly. Maintaining professionalism and focusing on the common goal of completing work is important. If necessary, I would also seek guidance from a manager to resolve the issue.

6. Describe a mistake you made, the feedback you received, and how you improved.

Once I made a mistake in an assignment because I rushed to complete it without reviewing properly. My teacher pointed out the importance of checking work before submission. After receiving this feedback, I started reviewing my work carefully and managing my time better. This helped me avoid similar mistakes in the future.

7. How do you motivate people when they feel demotivated?

When someone feels demotivated, I try to encourage them by reminding them of their strengths and past achievements. I also listen to their concerns and help them focus on small achievable goals. Positive support and constructive feedback can boost confidence. Motivation often increases when people feel supported and appreciated.

8. Describe the biggest risk you took to complete a task. Why did you take it?

One risk I took was volunteering to handle a challenging project even though I had limited experience. I took this opportunity because I wanted to learn new skills and gain confidence. I spent extra time researching and preparing to complete the task successfully. Taking this risk helped me grow and improve my abilities.

9. Talk about a time you approached your manager with a work-related problem.

In a work situation, if I face a problem that affects my task, I first analyze the issue carefully. Then I approach my manager with a clear explanation of the problem and possible solutions. This shows responsibility and helps find a quicker resolution. Good communication with a manager helps improve teamwork and productivity.

10. How did you handle a situation where a customer refused to listen to you?

If a customer refuses to listen, I would remain calm and patient. I would try to acknowledge their concern and reassure them that I want to help resolve the issue. Using polite language and clear explanations can sometimes reduce their frustration. My goal would be to build trust and guide the conversation toward a solution.
